How to identify a Stats SA Census 2022 fieldworker

Statistics South Africa (Stats SA) has deployed 165 000 contract staff to collect information from more than 17 million households for the Census 2022. A number of verification systems have been put in place so that households can check that the person at their door is a legitimate fieldworker.

Face-to-face enumeration

1) Clothing

All Stats SA fieldworkers have been issued with Census 2022-branded bib, peak cap, mask and bag. Fieldworkers have a census-branded ID card printed with the Stats SA logo with their photo, name, unique number and the district they have been assigned to work in.

2) Online

Households can make use of the online Fieldworker Verification System, which can be accessed here: <http://www.statssa.gov.za/Fieldworkerverification/home.php>. Households can search by name, surname or verification number. The fieldworker's photo, full name and surname and the district they have been assigned to work in are displayed.

3) Telephone

Households can contact the call centre on 0800 110 248, or the provincial census contact person listed here <http://census.statssa.gov.za/#myContacts> to verify the legitimacy of the person knocking at their door.

Telephonic enumeration

Households who registered to complete the census questionnaire telephonically with the assistance of a call centre agent can verify that the person calling them is legitimate using one of the following methods:

1) Online

Households can make use of the online Fieldworker Verification System, which can be accessed here: <http://www.statssa.gov.za/Fieldworkerverification/home.php>. Households can search using the unique verification number that the Stats SA enumerator will give them.

2) Telephone

Households can contact the call centre on 0800 110 248 to verify the legitimacy of the person calling them.

Please note the following:

Stats SA will not ask you for information like your ID number, bank details, or PIN number.
